This workshop is suitable for: those individuals who have the responsibility within organisations to manage risk, resilience and the application of contingency. Of value also to operational managers who apply day-to-day operational decisions.

Background

Welcome to this Network for Practices workshop/webinar. The management of organisation risk and contingency is a challenge and a key requirement and skill of any practice manager. This short workshop/webinar will enable delegates to develop appropriate resilience understanding and processes relevant to their organisational profile and need. Recent experiences within primary care organisations have evidenced the need to be appropriately in-tune with the need for resilience planning and effective application of contingency.

Course Content

This session is provided in four bite-size parts, ideal for consuming greater understanding of contingency and resilience planning and applying – the parts concern:

- Part One: organisational resilience principles
- Part Two: organisational resilience and business continuity
- Part Three: the importance of collaboration
- Part Four: the attributes of organisational resilience

Learning Outcomes

The workshop intends that on the conclusion of the session, each delegate will:

- Be better positioned to assess their contingency risks.
- Be better informed on the principles that can be applied to enhance resilience within the organisations.
- Better understand the need for effective contingency planning, appropriate to the risks of the organisation.
- Better positioned to manage risks through collaborative approaches.
- Be better positioned to provide business owners with assurance.
- Be more confident around resilience and continuity.
